A summer research student will help develop standard operating procedures (SOPs) for mechanical testing equipment (load frames) and diffraction data analysis software. Project deliverables will consist of a series of documents to aid external users running experiments at the F2 station at CHESS. As part of the project, the student will gain experience with standard mechanical testing procedures along with Python coding experience.